

Video Transcript – Student's reflection

It was a really good way of looking at the goals I'd set in September and the things that I felt that I'd accomplished by April. And comparing the two and realizing that I had gotten it better things, gotten better at things like time management or I had gotten better at things like social skills. And then also just putting aside a different list of things that I'd wanted to improve on.